

Jon David

Turner Construction
Virtual Design and Construction Regional Manager – New York

Jon is the regional manager of Virtual Design and Construction for Turner's New York offices. In this role Jon is responsible for advancing and overseeing the application of Building Information Modeling and other innovative technologies on Turner projects, from pre-construction through trade coordination and project turnover.

Jon joined Turner in 2010 after working professionally as an architect for six years, designing and managing complex projects for SHoP Architects and SHoP Construction. His experience with BIM for both the design and construction processes gives him a unique perspective and he has led coordination on a number of notable projects in New York City including the New York Police Academy, Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, New York Presbyterian Hospital, 7 Bryant Park, and Columbia Business School.

He received a Bachelor's degree from Indiana University and a Masters of Architecture degree from Parsons School of Design.
